

The Cuban Grand Master could not (GM) Avilanian Luis Ernesto Quesada Pérez (2 513) prevent the victory of International Master (MI) Carlos Daniel Albornoz Cabrera (2 577) in the match between the two, enough for the Camagueyan boy to win the championship Chess absolute in Cuba. However, the representative of Ciego de Ávila achieved a successful performance by placing fourth, matched with former national champions Isán Ortiz Suárez (Holguín-2 519) and Yuri González Vidal (Havana-2 565), whom he defeated and relegated to the fifth and sixth seats, in that order. The outcome of the competition corresponds to the predictions that preceded it, because Albornoz has a meteoric rise, to the point that, with 18 years and two months of life, he became the Creole who reaches that title with less age. According to the statistics of Professor and International Referee Osmani Pedraza Ledón, GM Villaclareño Jesús Nogueiras had the previous record since 1977, with 18 years and five months.

The specialist clarifies that, according to research by Miguel Ángel Sánchez, a biographer of Capablanca, the best Creole trebejista did not officially win the 1901 championship, when he was 13 years old: "... after that match with Juan Corzo, the tournament was played Cuba official, who won Corzo himself. " In the contest just concluded in Villa Clara, another novel player, the Havana MI Roberto García Pantoja (2 514), finished in second place with the same accumulated as Albornoz (7.5), but with fewer units in the tiebreaker system. He also added his third GM standard. The bronze medal went to GM Villaclareño Yasser Quesada Pérez (2 538), owner of seven units. With respect to the Elo coefficient, Bathrobe increased 9.7, which should be rounded to 10, Garcia grew by 20 points, Yasser (11) and Luis Ernesto (5). Of these four players, Albornoz and Yasser were in the national preselection, while Garcia and Luis Ernesto should be considered for that select group. Relay in action While the best trebejistas of the moment in the country were being debated in the Villaclareño Chess Palace that honors the memory of GM Guillermo García, at the Eleazar Jiménez Zerquera Avilanian Academy, the pioneering provincial tournament took place with the presence of more than 30 infants, from five municipalities. The Venezuelan team, guided by professors Yadier Viera Losada and Félix Villazón Macías, received the highest honors, especially for the performance of Ignacio Quesada, leader in the men's classification with five stripesThe second and third places were in Brayan de Jesús Téllez (4) and Alejandro Hernández (3,5), both of Julio Antonio Mella School, in the provincial capital. From that same squad come the winners among the girls, branch in which Heidly Jiménez was the champion, escorted by Claudia Aguilera (4), while the third step was conquered by Daniela Justa, from January 1st. These skills are the basis for the development of the work, since the little ones, as soon as they increase their strength on the board, have the opportunity to measure themselves with the elderly, follow their development, which leads to the most talented and persistent can Become Masters with less than 20 years of age.

The Grat Master (MG) Luis Ernesto Quesada Pérez (2 513) from Ciego de Ávila could not prevent the International Master Carlos Daniel Albornoz Cabrera victory
